THE TRADITIONAL LATIN MASS (TRIDENTINE MASS) AND THE LITURGY OF THE CHURCH TODAY

Beloved Parishioners,

This piece concludes the reflection I started last week on the traditional Latin Mass. Pope Benedict XVI hoped that allowing the two forms of the Roman Rite to coexist would heal wounds and foster mutual enrichment. The older rite would restore a sense of transcendence and reverence; the newer would provide accessibility and pastoral reach. His vision was rooted in a theology of continuity, in which the Church grows but never contradicts herself.

Pope Francis took a markedly different approach. In 2021, through the instrumentality of the document, Traditionis Custodes, he declared that the reformed liturgy of Vatican II is the unique expression of the Roman Rite and imposed strict limits on the use of the Traditional Latin Mass. His concern was not primarily ritual but ecclesial. He argued that the TLM had become a rallying point for those who reject Vatican II and undermine the unity of the Church. From his perspective, a liturgical form that fosters division must be regulated, even suppressed, for the sake of communion.

In connection with the restrictions imposed by Pope Francis on the TLM, Pope Francis removed Bishop Joseph E. Strickland of the Diocese of Tyler, Texas from the pastoral governance of the Diocese of Tyler, Texas, effectively relieving him of his office in 2023 after an apostolic visitation and consultation with other prelates. Strickland refused to implement the Traditionis Custodes restrictions (Pope Francis' 2021 apostolic letter limiting the celebration of the pre-Vatican II Mass), saying he did so because he could not "starve out part of my flock" by shutting down Traditional Latin Mass communities.

This disagreement between Popes Benedict XVI and Francis is not a mere statutory dispute. Rather, it reflects two competing visions of Tradition itself. Pope Benedict XVI sees Tradition as something that binds even popes, a sacred inheritance that cannot be repudiated; while Pope Francis sees Tradition as a living process that must be interpreted through the lens of the present Church, especially Vatican II. One prioritizes continuity; the other prioritizes unity as understood today. The intensity of the controversy shows that what is at stake is nothing less than the Church's self-understanding.

What makes the TLM so compelling to many in the modern world is precisely what makes it unsettling. In an age of noise, self-expression, and constant change, it offers stillness, objectivity, and transcendence. It does not ask how worshippers feel but how they adore. It places God, not the community, at the center. For its defenders, it is not a museum piece but a living school of reverence and humility. At the same time, its critics fear that it freezes the Church in a pre-conciliar mentality and resists the pastoral openness Vatican II sought to promote. They worry that it fosters clericalism, elitism, and a rejection of the Council's vision of a Church engaged with the modern world.

Thus, the Traditional Latin Mass has become more than a liturgical form. It is a symbol of two ways of being Catholic in the twenty-first century. Whichever side one takes, one thing is undeniable: the TLM has forced the Church to confront fundamental questions about authority, continuity, and worship. It has revealed that liturgy is never just about rubrics. It is theology made visible, belief embodied in ritual. And when the Church argues about how she prays, she is really arguing about who she is.

In his first Extraordinary Consistory of Cardinals (7–8 January 2026), Pope Leo XIV invited cardinals to discuss broad themes such as synodality, evangelization, and mission. Although it specifically indicates that the Traditional Latin Mass was not a central topic openly debated on the floor of the consistory, the liturgy and the place of the Traditional Latin Mass were present in the broader context, including through written materials distributed privately for example, a critical assessment of the TLM reportedly circulated by Cardinal Arthur Roche.

Theme: Jesus: The Beatitudes

4th Sunday of the Year A, February 1, 2026

First Reading: Zephaniah 2:3; 3:12-13, Second Reading: 1 Corinthians 1:26-31, Gospel: Matthew

Today's gospel reading on the beatitudes comes from the Gospel of Matthew 5:1-12. The beatitudes appeared also in the Gospel of Luke, 6:20-26. There is a slight difference between Matthew's account and that of Luke. Matthew presents the sermon on the Mountain while in Luke's it is on the plain. Another thing we may notice is that while Matthew gives us eight (8), Luke gives us four and included woes to match the corresponding beatitudes. Also, Luke's beatitudes follow immediately after the choosing of the twelve. It is based on this that many scholars have given other titles to this Sermon on the Mount. Some refer to it as The Compendium of Christ's Doctrines, others call it the Manifesto of the Kingdom, or the Magna Carta of the Kingdom.

It is good to point out that the Sermon on the Mount is not one single sermon Jesus preached on one definite situation, rather it is the summary of his consistent teaching to his disciples. The Sermon on the Mount is the opening of Jesus' heart and mind to those men and women who were his right-hand men and women in his task. It is the concentrated many hours of heart-to-heart communion between Jesus the master and his disciples. That is why at the beginning it says, "when he sat down his disciples came to him and he opened his mouth and taught them, saying..."

The beatitudes speak of that joy which sees us through our pain, that joy which sorrows and loss of pain and grief are powerless to touch, that joy which shines through tears, and which nothing in life or death can take away. In Jn 16:22, "No one, says Jesus, can take away your joy from you." A change in fortune, a collapse in health, the failure of plan, and the disappointment can take away the fickle joy the world can give. But the Christian has the serene and untouchable joy which comes from walking forever in the company of Jesus Christ.

The Sermon on the Mount or the Beatitudes is what some atheists have used against Christians by saying that religion is the opium of the people. Some have used it against Christians as saying that it is doctrine of the weak because Christ is a weakling. At the same time, it is this same text that attracted Gandhi and he reproached Christians for the neglect of it. Ultimately, the beatitudes are nothing but a portrait of Christ's own life. Jesus challenges his followers to live by God's standard, they are truly in a fortunate state in life, no matter what their circumstances may be, for they bring a glimmer of joy and hope of the heavenly kingdom into the afflictions of the present world.

Any Catholic who is interested in learning about the Faith more deeply is always welcome.

Candlemas Day Blessing of the Candles

On Monday, February 2, 2026, forty days after Christmas, the Church celebrates the feast of the Presentation of the Lord. Because it echoes the Christmas festival, this day is a celebration of light and darkness.

For nine centuries, it has been tradition to bless candles on this day. Because of its simplicity and beauty, the candle has continued to be used when the Church gathers for prayer, both in public places and in the home. We will continue the tradition the Church has had for nine centuries and bless candles that you bring to 8:30 am Mass on Monday, February 2nd, the Presentation of the Lord.

Prayer

Dear God, help me love other people the way you want me to.

Mission for the Week

God loves peacemakers. The next time you are tempted to argue with someone, think of ways to get along instead.

Sharing the Gospel

God sees the loving things you do. When you show kindness to others, especially when they don't deserve it, your kindness will come back to you. When you see others fighting, and you help them get along, you show that you are God's child. When you are gentle, not bossy, you make God smile. Even when it is hard, keep on doing what's right. One day in heaven God will reward you for the good choices you make.
